Unity needed to protect the nation: Sheikh Saad

Prime Minister Sheikh Saad Al Abdullah has called upon the Kuwaiti people for more cooperation, cohesion and unity to defend and protect the country.

In a televised address marking the 27th anniversary of Kuwait's National Day, Sheikh Saad said last night that the 18 months since the formation of the previous government had been fraught with challenges and grave events at all levels.

. But he added that the government did its best to face these circumstances and save the country from grave dangers.

The Premier emphasised that the present government is seeking cooperation from the public, each within his or her field of work, to continue the march towards a more prosperous future. He particularly stressed the role of expatriates, who he said share with Kuwaitis the prosperity and difficulties. He advised people to be tolerant and show understanding towards others' viewpoints, and stressed that Kuwait's national interests should be the top consideration.

Warned

Sheikh Saad warned against malice and sedition; and pointed out that allegiance to Kuwait and dedicated work are the only measures of patriotism.

Sheikh Saad called on the nation to follow the footprints of the forefathers who confronted hardships with determination and unity.

Our forefathers did not cave in to threats or blackmail, did not fear challenges, nor did they fear death in the service and defence of Kuwait. They rushed to meet the aggressor and beat him back," the Crown Prince added.

He said that Kuwaiti security forces have shouldered their responsibilities efficiently in guarding the stability, security and safety of citizens.

High on the government's priorities list, Sheikh Saad went on, has been the task of beefing up national defences in order to repulse any external aggression aimed at affecting its security and the very existence.

Sheikh Saad touched upon previous cabinet's accomplishments in the fields of internal security, education, planning, housing, and social welfare.

He pointed out that developing a constructive and productive Kuwaiti citizen remained the government's primary concern.

The Premier stressed that producing highly trained and productive national cadres will remain the centrepiece of the government's national development plans and on top of its

He added that the state is also extremely concerned about providing comprehensive medical, social and housing services to all its citizens.

He added that the government has introduced a fair judicial sys-tem that maintains law and order, defends public freedoms and the social regime. Turning to economic affairs,

Sheikh Saad said the critical situation in the Arabian Gulf region and the sharp drop in oil prices have combined to depress state revenues.

Pursuing

But he emphasised that carefully planned government policies and measures have cushioned the effects of economic slowdown in the region. Sheikh Saad indicated that the government was still pursping a policy designed to diversify national income to avoid reliance of any particular source of earning subject to market fluc-Sheikh Saad underlined the tic and sound planning, and pointed out that the government has initiated efforts to draft the second national development plan covering the years 1990/91 through 1994/95.

Turning to administrative reforms, the Crown Prince pointed out that the government has started implementing plans to upgrade the performance of civil servants and cut down red tape.

He urged government employees to shoulder their responsibilities and show the highest degree of professional dedication, performance and integrity.

Iranian attitude on Gulf war 'shifts' Baghdad with Iraqi Foreign

GENEVA, Feb 24, (Agencies): There had been a very discreet but clear change in Iranian attitudes towards the Gulf conflict, with Tehran now showing signs of having renounced the objective of a military victory in favour of a negotiated settlement, according to a Swiss newspaper analysis today.

The Lausanne paper 24 Heures said that there were a number of signs on the diplomatic level which indicated that such a change had occurred. Modalities Iranian diplomats, while continuing to maintain all their traditional demands, had changed their order of priorities in order to facilitate the opening of negotiations, it claimed.

At the same time Iranian diplomats had become increasingly interested in the modalities of the implementation of a ceasefire, while insisting at the same time that this was just one of the important steps toward negotiations, and not the only one as was understood from the English text of resolution 598.

However, by contrast Iran continued to be intransigent over a clear definition of who was responsible for the conflict, it went

On the military front Iran had refrained from any major or spectacular operations since late last vear.

Meanwhile, British envoy David Mellor held talks today in Minister Tariq Aziz on the situa-tion in the Gulf region and bilateral relations, British embassy officials said. During his one-hour meeting with Aziz, Mellor, Minister of State at the Foreign Office, also discussed efforts underway at the United Nations to end the Iran-Iraq war and violence in the Israeli-occupied West Bank and Gaza Strip, a British embassy spokesman said. Mellor arrived in the Iraqi capital late yesterday. He was expected to meet Deputy Prime Minister Taha Yassin Ramadan and other top ranking Iraqi officials.

He was scheduled to leave for Kuwait on Friday.

Moroccan Foreign Minister Abdel Latif Al Filali agreed with officials in Abu Dhabi on the need to implement a United Nations ceasefire call in the Gulf war, a press statement said today.

Meanwhile, in neighbouring Oman, Algerian Foreign Mini-ster Ahmed Al Ibrahimi held talks with Sultan Qaboos. Al Ibrahimi said they discussed backing for United Nations efforts to implement resolution 598, which calls for a ceasefire in the Iraq-Iran war.

Al Filali, and UAE Minister of State for Foreign Affairs Rashid Abdullah, also called for holding an international peace conference on the Middle East.

Shultz to visit Syria

DAMASCUS, Feb 24, (Agencies): US Secretary of State George Shultz will visit Damascus for several hours on Saturday as part of a tour of Middle East capitals to promote Arab-Israeli peace, a Syrian source said today.

DAMASCUS, Feb 24, (Reuter): The first snow in 50 years fell on some areas of the Syrian desert today as blizzards disrupted life in Syria, Lebanon and Jordan.

A 10-hour snowfall hit Damascus and officials said Air Force helicopters were dropping food and medical supplies to towns and villages cut off by snow over 50 cm (20 inches) deep. In northern and central Jordan, a second consecutive day of freezing storms forced schools and businesses to close and many roads were blocked by snow drifts.

In other parts of the country, hundreds of homes were flooded after heavy rains, policed said.

Palestinians lynch Arab collaborator

TEL AVIV, Feb 24, (Agencies): Palestinians lynched an Arab suspected of collaborating with Israeli authorities today after he shot dead a four-year-old boy and wounded 13 people who attacked his home, police sources

The incident occurred in the northern West Bank village of Khabatiyeh, near Jenin, as Palestinians throughout the Israelioccupied territories observed an almost total general strike in Secretary of State George Shultz.

Licensed

The sources said Mohamed Al Ayad opened fire with an Israelilicensed Uzi machine-gun when villagers set his house on fire. He was taken out and hanged from an electricity pylon with a Pales-tinian flag, they said. The Palestine Press Service

(PPS) said Ayad was "recognised as an Israeli spy."

Israeli security sources said only a handful of Palestinians who cooperated with the authorities were licensed to carry automatic weapons for their own protection.

Palestinian sources said villagers evacuated the man's mother, wife and children from his house before setting it alight with petrol bombs.

His severely burned body was left to hang from the pylon for several hours, they said.

It was the first time in the 11week-old uprising in the occupied territories that Palestinians have attacked a suspected collaborator. A Palestinian radio station broadcasting from Syria has broadcast the names of some West Bank Arabs it says work for the Israelis.

Israel's divided inner cabinet, meanwhile, failed to agree on a joint stance to present to Shultz during his five-day Middle East peace mission. Officials said the Secretary of State would be told the government was divided. Elsewhere in the occupied territories, Israeli troops shot and wounded four Palestinians during a violent demonstration in the Nuseiral refugee camp in the occupied Gaza Strip, local residents said.

The Army said it was checking the report.

Israeli and Palestinian sources said the Gaza Strip and the West Bank were paralysed by commercial and transport strikes staged by nearly all the 1.5 million Arabs in the occupied areas in protest against the US peace plan.

Most of the territories' 120.000 Arab workers employed in Israel stayed at home after calls from the "United national leadership of the popular uprismg" published in thousands of leaflets at the beginning of the cing Israeli leaders to accept his initiative calling for Palestinian self-rule in the West Bank and Gaza and negotiations on the final status of occupied areas by the end of the year. Shultz will shuttle between Jerusalem and Arab capitals for five days to press his peace plan. Amnesty International urged Israel to hold an independent inquiry into Army beatings of Palestinians which apparently had official backing.

JOHANNESBURG, Feb 24, (Reuter): South Africa's white rulers virtually outlawed the black opposition today by banning the activities of 17 leading anti-apartheid organisations and cracking down on a black trade.

Amai may not use force to free Higgins

BEIRUT, Feb 24, (Reuter): Lebanon's Amal militia knows who is holding US hostage William Higgins and where the kidnappers are, but does not want to use force to free him, Muslim political sources said

"Amal knows exactly the party that kidnapped the American and where the kidnappers are but is hesitant to use force to free him because it does not want to start an inter-Shi'ite feud or to go into battle with Iran's allies," said one source.

"Amal has all the information but the decision to use force is a political and not a security one,' another source said.

Amal refused to identify who was behind the abduction.

Higgins, head of the Lebanon unit of the UN Truce Supervision Organisation (Untso), was kidnapped by three bearded gunmen on Feb 17 near the port city of Tyre.

Amal military official in Tyre, Daoud Daoud, said the militia the same day had arrested two men who took part in the kidnapping and a third carrying a message to Higgin's captors to move him from South Lebanon, where he was abducted, to Beirut.

A Muslim security source told Reuters the message was sent by a pro-Iranian clergyman in Beirut but refused to name him.

"UN Undersecretary-General Marrack Goulding arrived at the UN headquarters in the southern town of Naqoura today for talks on efforts to release Higgins, said

UN spokesman Timur Goksel. He told Reuters that Goulding, who arrived from Cairo, was holding talks with UN officers to obtain information on the latest efforts to release Higgins." Goksel, spokesman for the UN Interim Force in Lebanon (Unifil), said Amal told Unifil of the arrest of the three but the UN did not ask to see the detainees "because they are in an area out-

EAST BERLIN, Feb 24, (Reuter): Soviet troops will start withdrawing nuclear missiles from two bases at opposite ends of East Germany tomorrow, before the treaty scrapping them is ratified, the East German Foreign Ministry said.

A similar Western gesture was now expected, he said.

Failure of US-Soviet talks

GULF PRESS

TWO United Arab Emirates English language dailies in their editorials expressed regret that the recent US-Soviet talks in Moscow failed to achieve much on regional issues, particularly the Middle East.

The Khaleei Times, published from Dubai said the talks between US Secretary of State George Shultz and Soviet leaders in Moscow this week "revived hopes of a strategic arms reduction freaty being prepared but produced no major move on regional issues. "While Moscow welcomed Shultz's Imminent visit to the Middle East, it sounded doubtful about the latest US peace plan," the paper pointed out.

It said "at a time when both superpowers should be showing greater and genuine interest in resolving the Palestinian issue their ambivalence is regrettable."

"If Washington has presented a half-hearted peace formula Moscow has looked wanting in more, forcefully expressing its reservations to Shultz," it said.

The Gulf News, also Dubal-based, said though the latest meeting has confirmed as a "firm trend" the warming of superpower relations there had been no headway on the Middle East problem. "There is no prospect of an agreed superpower strategy emerging as yet" on the Middle East, it said. "The Soviets welcomed Shultz's trip to the region in the next few days but said they were doubtful of the US plan succeeding"; It

Washington's policy criticised

UAE Arabic newspapers criticised Washington's policy and the recent US peace proposals on the eve of a Middle East tour by Secretary of State George Shultz.

"The US plan Shultz is carrying is designed to quench the fire of the Palestinian uprising in the Israeli-occupied territories," the Abu Dhahi-based Al Ittihad said.

It said the uprising. In which at least 63 Palestinians have been killed by Israeli troops, forced the US to view the Palestinian cause as a priority issue. "But these do not indicate any real change in the US policy which still is concerned about the Palestinian problem only out of its interest in Israel," it said. It attacked the US proposals which included only self-rule

"without any reference to PalestInian self-determination." "Shultz is bringing with him old stuff in a new wrapping and is coming here only to bless Zionist repression against the Palestinians," it sald. The Dubai-based Al Bayan predicted failure of Shuttz's mission. "The tour carries in itself all elements of failure because it is intended to promote proposals already rejected by the Arabs and

Palestinians," it said. "What Washington is offering is in essence not different from the Camp David accords and the US after all developments and changes, is still referring to the Palestinians as refugees." It stressed that, "peace, like land, is indivisible - either there is complete peace or there is none."

SINCE last May when the Fable Talk column began I have reviewed meals at a number of hotel coffee shops around Kuwait. You might be interested to compare the prices we paid for three-course buffets for two people (including drinks).

less expensive fare. This week we ate in the coffee shop of the Regency Palace Hotel and were rather taken aback when the bill came to KD13.500 including two coffees and one apple juice. Even buffets at luxurious middlerange restaurants such as the Sheraton's Al Hambra or The Kuwait Towers were cheaper (KD12.800 and KD12.600 respectively). So what do you get for your money at the Regency

Palace? Certainly the architecture and decor of the coffee shop are in exquisite taste. The beamed ceiling, archways, dark rosewood chandeliers, wrought iron grill-work and bishop's hassock cushions create the atmosphere of a medieval banqueting hall. The room has a cool, airy Mediterranean feel with the terracotta tiled floor, blue and yellow ceramics and arched windows overlooking the pool. The chairs, though elegant, are not very comfortable. The buffet table itself is rather cramped, although it has been tastefully decorated with a simple yellow sunshade, a few plants and an aquarium and none of those garish polystyrene models that haunt most coffee shops in town.

There were few guests in the restaurant and the service throughout the meal was flawless. Our every need was anticipated, plates being quickly removed between courses-and someone always close by to help with the lids of the chafing dishes.

The chefs too are to be commended. All three courses were attractively presented and prepared with delicacy and skill. However one had the impression that they were being forced to work within a strict budget. The salad buffet con-tained a small selection of foodstuffs when compared with other less expensive buffets around town. Apart from cold roast chicken and stuffed fish slices, all of the dishes had vegetable ingredients. For KD13.500 one would have expected to see Gulf prawns and smoked salmon at least. Several of the salads were simple, unimaginative, monoingredient dishes such as grated carrot or beetroot slices. The artichokes in garlic and oil were excellent as was the muttabal.

The hot dishes were all cooked to perfection. My favourite was fried fillets of hamour topped with capers. black olives and finely diced red peppers. The melting texture of the roast potatoes cooked with beef bacon is also memorable. My guest recommended the moist, tender slices of roast turkey cooked in a tasty gravy with mushrooms. There was an excellent 'machbous al laham' with a fragrant topping of spiced lentils and sultanas. One could choose from yeal with a julienne of peppers and onions or tender meatballs in a tangy sauce. There was also mixed grill and 'kibbe bil saniya.'

The range of desserts was rather limited and again one had the impression of careful budgeting behind scenes. There were no large gateaux, just a few individual slices of cake. The other sweets were predicta-

World criticism of Israel mounts

By Patrick Worsnip

LONDON, (Reuter): The Palestinian uprising in the Israelioccupied territories has brought widespread criticism from the world at large of Israel's methods of riot control but few new ideas on how to solve the Middle East problem.

The prolonged unrest in the Gaza Strip and West Bank, in which at least 59 Palestinians have been killed, has spurred the United States into launching a fresh peace initiative based largely on the 1978 Israeli-Egyptian Camp David accords.

The leaders of Egypt and Jordan have renewed efforts to promote their formula for tackling the crisis — a peace conference of the parties to the conflict and the five permanent members of the UN Security

Many other countries would doubtless agree with the view expressed recently by Vatican Radio that the violence underlines the need for a Middle East solution.

But, conscious perhaps that the region is a graveyard of peace plans, these countries have done little except deplore the situation and restate long-held opinions on what needs to be done.

A Dutch Foreign Ministry official, referring to a dilemma over whether Prime Minister Ruud Lubbers should scrap a planned visit to Israel in May, probably spoke for many when he said: "The Dutch wish that the trouble would just go away." Deplore

A European Economic Community (EEC) statement issued earlier this month said that the 12 members "deeply deplore the repressive measures taken by Israel, which are in violation of international law and human rights. These measures must stop."

The statement went no further than reiterating EEC support for the international conference scheme, which Israeli Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir has rejec-

Washington's friends in Europe and the Arab world have appeared anxious not to undercut the US initiative, which has called "a new blend of ideas that have been around for a while." Shultz will visit the Mic dle East this week to discuss the

Israeli officials say the proposal would start off with some kind of international meeting, provide for an interim period of limited self-rule for the Palestinians and then Arab-Israeli negotiations on a permanent set-

Jordanian and Egyptian officials have said such a plan would not go far enough and privately many West European diplomats are also sceptical. But none of them want to discourage the United States, seen as the only power able to influence Israel, from engaging in a Middle East peace effort.

One State Department official said the violence had not hardened US government attitudes towards Israel but had made Washington more determined "to persuade Israel it is in its own interests to move the peace process forward at this time.

The Palestine Liberation Organisation (PLO), however, has rejected the plan, seeing it as a poorly-concealed attempt to take the heat off Israel while adding nothing to previous

A senior PLO official in Tunis said: "We are putting all our efforts into helping the uprising." But many independent analysts dispute the PLO's claim to have been behind the rioting and believe it may have lost the initiative to the youthful demonstrators.

Strong statements of support for the Palestinians have come from Arab allies in the Third World and communist countries.

Zambian President Kenneth Kaunda declared last week that "what they (the Israelis) are doing to the Palestinians is exactly what Hitler did to the Jewish people."

Beating

In Peking, the China Daily published a cartoon of a US official looking through bin-oculars with his back to Israeli soldiers beating up a Palestinian, with the caption: "Don't disturb me. I'm looking for human rights violations in the world."

Lack of US presidential favourites

Long struggle for the White House

By Michael Gelb

WASHINGTON. (Reuter): Iowa and New Hampshire voters, who traditionally launch US presidents on the road to the White House, have for once produced a muddle.

Instead of two main contenders emerging from the Republican and Democratic parties this year, more than half a dozen significant candidates remain after voting in the two

Political strategists say that for the first time since 1952, one of the parties may need more than one ballot at its national convention to choose its nominee for the presidential election in Novem-

"On both sides, this is going to be long, hard and unsettled." said Democratic strategist Robert Beckel who managed Walter Mondale's 1984 presidential campaign. "With so many candidates it may become mathematically impossible to amass a majority of delegates." Vice-President George Bush, bruised by a third-place finish in the Feb 8 lowa party caucus votes, bounced back with a big New Hampshire primary win last Tuesday that restored him as the frontrunner for the Republican nomination to succeed President

Reagan. Trounced

Robert Dole, Republican leader in the Senate who trounced Bush in Iowa, is still a serious contender and former television evangelist Pat Robertson has built a strong army of evangelical Christians worried about declining moral standards.

The Democrats, who began the year without a clear favourite, still lack one and have four candidates capable of amassing support in contests over the next few weeks.

Massachusetts governor Michael Dukakis, who has the most money, won in neighbour-ing New Hampshire. Missouri representative Richard Gephardt, the Iowa winner, was helped by regional Tennessee Senator Albert Gore and civil rights leader Jesse Jackson, two sons of the south, are hoping to score well on "Super Tuesday" — the next big primary-season event on March 8, when voting will take place in 20 states, 12 of them in the south.

About a third of the delegates to the presidential nominating convention in each party will be chosen on that day.

Publicity New Hampshire and Iowa accounted for just two per cent of delegates and were fought mainly for publicity and credibility. Super Tuesday could theoretically produce a clear leader but it seems unlikely that any Democrat will win much more than a third of the 1,307 party delegates chosen on that day.

There will be 4,162 delegates at the Democratic convention in Atlanta in July, with a majority (2,082) needed to nominate a candidate. On Super Tuesday, it is possi-ble that one Democratic candidate might win the most delegates, another might have support from the most states and a third might receive the biggest popular vote. "Almost everybody is going to claim some kind of victory on Super Tuesday, says Ann Lewis, former Democratic Party political director. Former Democractic Party chairman Robert Strauss says the odds are 50-50 that the primary battles will end in June without a Democratic nominee.

If that occurs, the contest could be settled by 645 delegates who are not legally bound to back any candidate. These are party leaders and past and present elected officials.

Unique indeed

SIR: During the past few months many letters have appeared in the Arab Times criticising the content of KTV 2; eight o'clock news and alleged incompetence of its newsreaders.

These criticisms are unkind and totally without justification. I want to express my appreciation for this unique news programme.

I look forward every night to watching the KTV 2 news and never miss it because it provides relief for the evening.

Mr Suleiman Kalandar has been singled out for criticism but I have always admired his serious manner and his mellifluous voice. He runs words and phrases together, punc-tuated by the occasional splutter. For a long time, however, I have tried to identify the language he speaks, but I failed. I can only conclude that he speaks a language which is entirely of his own invention. Such linguistic originality should be lauded, not despised. As for the content of the news, it accurately reflects local priorities and concerns and is rarely contaminated by hard facts of any kind.

In fact my only criticism would be that KTV 2 fails to provide the necessary subtitles in English. Has KTV 2 ever considered syndicating its newscasts and distributing them worldwide? I am sure they would find an enthusiastic audience, especially among the penguins of Antarctica and the geriatric tortoises in Galapagos Islands.

Who knows these newscasts may promote bilateral relations with that mysterious island off New Zealand which still appears in the KTV 2 world map, and was first discovered by Keith Wells who is a keen observer of such matters of mutual concern.

Too large amount

SIR: Recently, I obtained a ration card and found the distribution system excellent, commodities supplied were plentiful and cheap.

However, the packing of items like wheat flour in large quantity leaves no choice for small and medium sized families to buy such items in required quantities.

My family consists of two adults and two small children and I certainly do not need a 50kg bag of flour for a month. Since wheat flour is not available elsewhere, nor remains fresh for very long, one has to forego the item altogether due to its large packing or let the remainder go waste. There must be quite a number of families around, facing such a dilemma.

The authorities should pack wheat flour in smaller quantities like in bags of five or ten kgs, allowing some option to the consumer.

Confusion at film festival

SIR: The recent American Film Festival was marred by organisational confusion.

Sensing some confusion, I checked with Cine Club authorities whether it was OK to come the next day without membership. Despite all their assurances, we were again stopped the next day, while some other people who are not members were being allowed in. We had to return home without seeing the film. "I request the Cine Club to announce its intentions, very clearly in the newspapers. If it intends to limit the admissions strictly to its members it should say so. That way the general

KATHUNANGAL, India. (AP): The turban of 12-year-old Sikh Darshan Singh was half burned from the heat of the mudoven where he hid to escape

But the killers - Sikhs themselves - yanked him out, and he died in a burst of gunfire. Darshan, his elder brother Gajjan and his father Jarnail were killed in their courtyard in the village of Fattu Bheela, home of 2,000 Sikhs. More than 100 shots were

Attack

It was just one case of Sikhs killing Sikhs. Never before in the six-year campaign for an independent homeland by Sikh radicals have the killers turned their guns so relentlessly on people of their own minority faith. Of the 283 deaths blamed on Sikh militants this year in the Sikh-dominated northern state of Punjab, at least 169 victims were Sikhs. Eighty-four were Hindus and 30 were unidentified. Last Friday and Saturday, 31 people were killed in a spree of attacks by radicals. At least 20

The Sikh campaign began with killing of Hindus, India's religious majority but a minority in Punjab. The radicals allege economic and cultural domination by Hindus and want an independent homeland for their 16 million people.

Most of the around 1,000 people slain by Sikh radicals last year were Hindus. Theories vary on why the guns have been turned on "Most of the men killed are either former terrorists or harbourers and their families who now refuse to give shelter to the militants," S.S. Virk, deputy director general of the Paramilitary Central Reserve Police Force, said in an interview at Amritsar.

"It is just a terror tactic. The militants want the message to go deep-that they will not only kill those who oppose them, but even those who refuse to support them," said Amritsar district police superintendent Mohammed Izhar Alam.

But the killers have their own logic, claiming all Sikh victims are police informers or enemies of their 500-year-old faith, founded as an alternative to warring Muslims and Hindus.

"We shed the blood of only enemies, not of innocents or passive people. ... it is not a Sikh tradition to kill the innocent, said Giani Jagir Singh, spokes-man for the "Panthic Committee," an umbrella group that controls the Sikh movement.

After a few minutes they fired at Surject," she said. Her husband, Surject, another son, and a 4-year-old granddaughter were killed, while Mrs Kaur and her daughter-in-law hid behind a bolted kitchen door.

Her son Surject was arrested last July for illegally possessing a firearm and was believed to be a member of the radical group 'Babbar Khalsa." He was released on bail Jan 1.

"He was not a police informer, but he was required under bail provision to report to the police station once a week," said Kathunangal police officer Subba Singh. "So his former associates drew the conclusion that Surject police the entire area." The killers often leave behind a note on stationery of "Khalistan," the name of their unborn Sikh nation. The letters sometimes even carry reference numbers, such as the "A-159" on one left in the courtvard where 12-year-old Darshan Singh was killed. "They are our death warrants. 'A' stands for Akal (the immortal throne of the Sikh faith) and the police informer to be killed was 159 on our list," explained Giani Jagir Singh, the militant spokesrazon Aquino, despite coup attempts and political turmoil, begins her third year in office today more secure in power than at any time in her turbulent administration. But many who saw the Feb 25, 1986, uprising against President Ferdinand Marcos are disappointed that dreams of social progress and reform remain

The coalition of reformist soldiers, human rights activists, the Roman Catholic church and business groups that propelled Mrs Aquino to power has been shattered in the bickering that followed.

Land reform remains bogged down in Congress. Human rights groups that once castigated Marcos for the abuses of his administration now raise similar charges against the Aquino government. In a radio broadcast Sunday, Mrs Aquino described her first two years in office as "very dif-

Last week, the major topic in Manila newspapers was a debate over calls for a "limited state of emergency," raising dark memories of the worst excesses of the Marcos era. "It appears that the anniver-sary will confirm the demise of a failed reformist revolution," wrote commentator Amando Doronila in the Manila Chronicle. "It will show that the revolution, two years after, is like a crushed anthill, with its inhabitants scurrying about without direction and in dis-аггау.` Brig Gen Honesto Isleta, Defence Secretary Fidel Ramos former spokesman, suggested a limited emergency to deal with the communists. Rep Eduardo Gutang, a retired general, proposed a national security act similar to those in Malaysia and Singapore. It allows, among other things, detention without charge for 60 days.

Laws After criticism from liberal congressmen and the Manila press, Ramos said there was no need for a state of emergency. But he called for tougher laws, including a national identity card system, longer detention for suspected rebels and re-imposition of the death penalty.

Sen. Rene Saguisag, a former presidential spokesman and military of "blackmail" and Sen. Teofisto Guingona branded the proposed identity card system as the trappings of a police state.

Despite the disillusionment in some sectors, most Western and Philippine analysts doubt that disgruntled military officers. Marcos loyalists or communists rebels can topple the popular 55-year-old widow before her term expires on June 30, 1992. Military challenges to the Aquino administration reached their peak last August, when mutineers seized media and military installations before being driven off some 15 hours later.

The leader of the coup attempt, Lt Col. Gregorio 'Gringo' Honasan, was arrested the following December. Ironically, he played a major role in the Feb 22, 1986, mutiny against Marcos, which triggered the popular uprising that brought Mrs Aquino to power.

Threat Most analysts believe that communist rebels, while a serious long-term threat, appear to lack both the military strength and political following to topple Mrs Aquino within the next four years.

"The question used to be, will Cory make it to 1992?" said one Western analyst, who spoke on condition of anonymity. "Now it is 'what will she do in the rest of

Beyond surviving, the prin-cipal achievement of the Aquino administration has been the restoration of popular democracy, marked by ratification of a liberal constitution and the elections of senators, congressmen and regional officials. Last week, however, Senate president Jovito Salonga noted there were 700 allegations of fraud in the Jan 18 regional election. He said those who believe real democracy has been restored "are more obsessed with theory than actual fact." Prospects for broad social. economic and political reform have been clouded by several factors, including a $28-billion debt. a cumbersome legislature and political polarisation widened by the communist rebellion and a rise in military influence. For much of her term, Aquino faced serious challenges from the military, and she owes her political survival to a great extent to a faction under Ramos.

As Chief of Staff, Ramos held most of the armed forces behind the government and fended off six coup plots. Social activists fear her reliance on the Ramos faction has resulted in a downplaying of the government's commitment to reform and

CALL THAT TREND?

By John Owen-Davies ANKARA, (Reuter): Stung by charges of bad reporting, Turkish journalists have set up a watchdog body to help improve the image of their newspapers and maintain press freedom.

Relations have long been strained between the government and most top newspapers, with sensational political articles, showbusiness "exposes" and pictures of scantily-clad girls bring-ing pressure for legal controls and a draft law to punish "false

Shouts of agreement, and a chorus of "the press is a liar," provided a background for scathing comments about newspapers made by Turkey's conservative Prime Minister Turgut Ozal at a party meeting a few days

Ilnur Cevik, editor-in-chief of the Turkish Daily News, said journalists were aware, "things are getting out of hand and that irresponsible reporting has tarnished the image of the press. "The best remedy is the one the press offers, to correct itself. This is why the Press Council has to succeed. Failure will be an open invitation for the government to suppress the press," he wrote in an editorial.

Bureaucatic nonsense

THE other day a friend of mine started telling me about all the hassles he's having trying to send his cat back home to England. Gone are the days when jolly old Dick Whittington could wander around the place quite happily with his cat and his spotted handkerchiel on a stick. Nowadays, if you want to travel with your cat, the poor creature'd better have his paperwork in order!

I was so intrigued by this that I made arrangements to go and interview the Cat Ambassador and Pussipotentiary to Kuwait. His Excellency Thomas Whiskers. He asked me to come on Friday afternoon, when the people he lived with would be asleep. He was a handsome devil, all black with a white waist coat and white boots.

"Come in, Mr Keith, come in, how purrfectly lovely to see you, purrmit me to take your coat. Would you like some coffee, I've got the purreolator purrking away."

"Thank you. I hope I'm not letting the cat out of the bag ...."
"Why not?" he growled, it's a terrible place to keep a cat!"

"Oh yes, quite, sorry. Er ... how do you start to get the formalities completed." When a purrson wants to travel, the first thing he, or she, or in those sad cases where they have had their inalienable rights moved, it, needs an identity card. For that they have to have a medical in case they have some terrible disease like cataracts, or catarrh or catalepsy. Next, they need a No Objections Certificat".

'Is that all?" I enquired. Oh no, then they have to fill,

"How about photographs?" "Of course, every purrson has to record their pawprints down at the Pussport Office." Tom yawned, "It's so boring there, all the waiting, I get bored out my paws so I usually take a catnap or play cat's cradle to puss the time, otherwise I'd probably fail into a catatonic trance.

Just then we were interrupted by a rather embarrassing series of noises from the ibedroom where Tom's owners

"Not enough room to swing a cat!" I joked. Tom glared at me frostily,

'What a disgusting idea.' "Oh I'm very sorry, Your Excellency, I didn't realise. I suppose I've really put the cat among the pigeons now." "That's better," Tom said, sheathing his claws, "I like that idea very much."

"What's it like flying in the baggage hold?

"Quite frankly it's a dog's life. There you are in the dark, like being in the catacombs next thing you know you're catapulted into the air. It's hard not to feel really purrsecuted. Everyone complains, of course, cat-calling and caterwauling at the airline purrsonnel."

"Then what happens when you get to Heathrow?"
"Oh that's another catastrophe, we have to spend six months in quarantine or else we're purrsona non grata. Still, eventually they purrmit us to leave." What do you do when you finally get out?" I asked.

Tom graned like his Cheshire cousin. "It's purradise," he smiled, "I always like to celebrate by doing something cultural, in the morning I go to a mewseum, then that first night I like to go to a show in the West End, I love mewsicals, you can probably guess my favourite."

I thanked the Ambassador for all his help and just as I was going I asked one last question,

"Do you like being a cat?" "Of course," he said, strok-ing his whiskers, "There are lots of purrks."

Amitabh weaves his magic once again

AFTER a whole year without a single release, Amitabh Bachchan is all set to make a grand come-back. At the rate he has signed films and completed their shootings, he will have a crowded release programme from the middle of this year.

It seems Amitabh has at last realised that politics cannot be his field and cinema is where he really belongs. Though he joined Prime Minister Rajiv Gandhi on his annual holiday at Lakshadweep island. Amit is devoting all his time to film work and not dabbling much in political climbing or pleasing the voters. Now, he wants once more to get a public vote of confidence as a hero and bask in the glory of hit films, preferably four to live running at the same

He was also stung by Subhash Ghai shelving Devaa Rahul Rawail dropping him from Mast Qalendar in favour of Dharmendra and his own big Shahenshah being postponed for so long. That's why he gathered together his old producers and some new ones to gauge their faith in his box-office churisma. They and their dis-tributors found that he was still hot property. Then followed a stream of new films, launched in a showy way and shooting at a hectic speed. For some producers he has even signed two films each.

Yash Johar who has produced some successful films in the past (including Dostana with Amit and Shatrul has bagged Amitabh for two new films. One will be directed by Mukul Anand and the other by Shibu Mitra, both being directors who have had hits recently. Both films will have Mithun as a parallel hero. The first will go into production at once. Prakash Mehra, who got along extremely well with Amit at one time and made record-breaking hits was out of the hero's favour, due to some internal fights. But now he has bounced back in the star's camp and started two films, Jadoogar and Sadhu Sant. These two also have Mithun, who is Amit's costar in Ganga Jamuna Saras-wati being readied for release by Manmohan Desai.

Amitabh has Sach as his imminent release, apart from Shahenshah and a guest appearance in Soorma Bhopali for the future, he has Shashi Kapoor's Ajooba or Black Prince, Ramesh Sippy's Akela Raakesh Roshan's Jaahil, apart from Nadiadwalla's Aali-shan and Tinnu Anand's Mahakaal. New projects with other successful directors are also under his consideration. Moreover, he has started working feverishly after a bout of sickness cum depression and a lull of inactivity, when he had only three films on hand. His keenness is evident from the way he works. In any case, he was always considered punctual and painstaking, even during that frivolous romantic period with Rekha, when they used to run away from shootings. But now, he is even more earnest, and determined to come-back with a vengeance. For Manmohan Desai's second film Toofan in which he has a double role, he finished a marathon spell which has made the film almost three-fourths complete. Meenakshi, Amrita and Farouque Shaikh are his co-stars. For Sach opposite Shabana Azmi, he did almost non-stop shooting at Pune, Bombay and other locales. For Ganga Jamuna Saraswati he did long spells in the South despile an injury. The heroines are Jaya Prada and Meenakshi.

The speed is being seen in the results, as he will have two major movies and one small realistic film ready to follow Shahenshah. The only catch is that Sach has still not been booked by distributors, except in one zone, as it is not the usual action film. Aalishan with Dimple and Meenakshi as the heroines, has just begun filming and it is already sold out for all centres. Ajooba the Indo-Soviet venture of Shashi Kapoor with Dimple as heroine has also started shooting. Other films are being formally launched this month. Soon, Amit will be juggling with the different dates.

Why are his films having lavish "mahurats" and celebra-tions nowadays, whereas for-merly they would just go ahead in a businesslike way? It is obvious that Amit wants to show off his conquests, spite his rivals and declare that he is busy and successful, despite the political mishaps. That is why Prakash Mehra held two separate launchings of his two films amidst a big crowd of guests and journalists, for popular appeal.

The "mahurat" of Jadoogar was much talked about, as A: nitabh came in a Michael Jackson type embroidered coat, complete with dark glasses with the excuse that he had an eye injury. Poor Mithun who is the 'pretender' of the Jackson title looked nonplussed with his own similar glasses. Amit made a bigger impression playing a real magician and playing to the

When Kalyanji — Anandji gave him a disc, he turned it into a handkerchief and asked the composers to wipe their sweat. Then he said that the best magic on earth was a woman and produced Jaya Prada whom he embraced. All this got him a lot of applause. "Sadhu Sant" was also launched with much fanfare and the inspector general of police switched on the had thought of the name. And

At the mahurat of 'Jadoogar' Amitabh acted the magician dressed in a Michael Jackson-type Jackie Shroff, while Shashi Kapoor plays an important role. A fortnight's schedule was also completed. Thereafter Yash Johar launched his first one of Amitabh directed by Mukul Anand, followed by a 5day shooting spell.

The style in which Amitabh is working, does not allow him to use the land route to go from one location to another. He literally flies. For the shooting of Toofan when he was staying in Bangalore and the location was Hoognigal, he would go in a helicopter along with Man-mohan Desai. The high cost would of course be shared by both, as they are almost like partners and Amit has a share in the distribution rights. It is also peculiar that the hero prefers to work only with the same small select group of producers and co-artistes, even if it is at the cost of variety.

rt cinema survives in Calcutta

CALCUTTA has received a had press for so long that it is preparing for its tercentenary in 1990 in a mood of cheerful defiance. Its pollution is all enveloping and the night air is a damp, dense smog that goes straight to the throat.

The traffic is stationary during rush hours, the pavements are covered with a fine layer of dust and the poverty is a condition of life.

Yet Calcuttans are proud of their city for the vitality and good humour with which it survives. More than any other in India, it has a passion for the arts and culture. Not for nothing is the festival for Saraswati. the goddess of learning, the most important here.

GENETIC DISEASES ARE INHERITED CONDITIONS

QUESTION: What is a genetic disease? Can it be cured? ANSWER: A genetic disease is any condition that is inherited, that is, transmitted through the genes from your parents. Just as you can inherit brown eyes or tallness, you can inherit certain diseases. such as Tay-Sachs, sickle-cell anemia, cystic fibrosis or other conditions.

Genetic diseases should not be confused with birth defects. A birth defect may or may not have been inherited. Some genetic diseases don't show up until years after birth or, like Huntington's disease, not until middle age, after the affected person already has children and passed on the gene for the Many genetic illnesses are made worse by environmental factors. An example is phenylketonuria (PKU), where the body can't break down protein normally, and mental retardation results. If a child with PKU is fed a special diet from birth, he or she will grow normally. PKU, like Tay-Sachs, is actually an inherited defect in metabolism.

Genetic diseases are caused by one or more faulty genes. We each get half our genes from our mother and half from our father. Some diseases, such as hypercholesterolemia, are dominant and need only one faulty gene in order for an affected person to be ill. Other diseases are recessive and the person must inherit a faulty gene from each parent to have it. Getting only one recessive gene means you're a carrier; you're healthy, but can pass the gene on to your children. For some diseases, having one bad gene may mean that, in addition to being a carrier, you have a milder case than if you had inherited both genes. Sex-linked diseases, such as hemophilia and colourblindness, are those that women can carry, but men only can

When a child inherits a disease, the chances of another child in the family having it vary. In Huntingonton's disease, half the children in the family inherit the gene and develop the disease. In hemophilia, where the mother carries the gene, half her sons will have hemophilia and half her daughters will be carriers. In a family with sickle-cell anemia and PKU, each child has a 25 per cent risk of inheriting. No genetic illness can be cured. Hemophiliaes can inject clotting factors and people with PKU can adjust their diet, but they can never get rid of their genes. The best way to deal with genetic disorders is to prevent them through screening. Simple blood tests can detect the gene for sickle-cell anemia. Amniocentesis can detect TaySachs and other metabolic diseases during a pregnancy. If you suspect you carry a genetic disease, talk to your doctor about genetic counseling, which can help you make decisions about having children.

ACROSS MY DESK: Representatives

from health and labour groups met at the Centres for Disease Control headquarters in Atlanta to help formulate new federal guidelines to protect health-care workers against infections from AIDS and other blood-borne diseases. Institutions that fail to comply with these new regulations may face lines of up to $10,000. When nine documented cases of job-related AIDS in health-care workers came to the attention of the American Nurses Association, it along with representatives of unions representing health-care workers requested the Occupational Safety and Health Administration (OSHA) to enact temporary standards designed to protect workers. The guidelines are expected to require that special protective garments be used when contact with body fluids of infected patients is required. But there is controversy here as well, concerning implementation, and enforcement, in the face of a perceived risk that is growing.

New confidence seen in Kuwait banks

y M.C. Bose

This is the second part of the article "Overall strategic planning process brings new image." The first part appeared in the Arab Times on Wednesday Feb 24.

DR Ziad Taky the chief economist, Economics and Planning Division of the National Bank of Kuwait has said the Economics and Planning Division provides key research, forecasting and market development services which underpin the bank's overall' strategic planning process. Throughout the year, it monitors economic and financial trends in Kuwait, the region, and in selected international markets, and provides analyses and market projections for use by NBK's senior management, and bank's clients and correspon-

The division consists of five main units that include the Domestic Economic Department, Marketing Development department, International Economic department, the Planning Department and the Library and Information Centre.

Dr Taky said the Domestic Economic Department monitors economic and financial trends in Kuwait and the other GCC countries, identifying new business opportunities and markets in which the bank should reposition itself in view of new economic realities.

Its forecasts of broad domestic trends and key monetary variables are used to formulate the bank's annual business targets and its long-range strategic plan.

The domestic and international units produce a range of internationally respected analytical and statistical publications on the Kuwaiti and GCC economics—including the GCC Economic and Financial Bulletin, Kuwait Interim Economic Report, Kuwait and the GCC in Figures and the NBK Currency Monitor.

Operations

Headded that the primary function of the London based International Economic Department is to support and direct the bank's profitable international activities. By constant monitoring of economic and financial developments worldwide, its country risk analyses, rating and exposure limit criteria have successfullycontributed to the International Banking Group's marktions, whilst its comprehensive financial analyses form a valued part of the bank's investment management and treasury

In addition to its internal role, it freely disseminates specific and financial market information and advice to NBK clients.

The Marketing Development Department had a busy and challenging year, identifying new market opportunities and evaluating the quality of delivery of NBK services and products. It initiated a major project to segment the bank's large customer base in Kuwait and abroad according to social, economic and psychographic profiles, in order to assess how its existing

This helped the recently established Product Development Committee to recommend the development of new financial packages for NBK Relationship Banking Officers to use in optimising clients' utilisation of the bank's services.

In conjunction with divisional marketing plans, the department provided analyses of the bank's existing business, and initiated market studies to determine the most appropriate and profitable marketing directions for individual divisions.

Vision

Dr Taky said the Planning Department is responsible for delineating a clear medium- and long-term strategic vision for the overall NBK Group — according to which the bank can streamline its business action plans and achieve optimum operational results. For nearly a decade, NBK's strategic planning capacity has set it apart from most other Arab banks.

It has been largely responsible for the bank's sustained profitability, its orderly international growth and its consolidation of market share in Kuwait and the Gulf. One- and three-year rolling planning cycles emphasise an implementation-oriented approach to growth, and rely on line-management involvement and accountability at each successive "Working under the guidance of the Management Executive Committee, the Planning Department coordinates strategic and business planning, and provides an annual review of the bank's performance and its position in regional and global markets. It contributes to the development of key strategic initiatives such as relationship banking and regional expansion in the Gulf, and continuously analyses vital strategic issues which impact directly on net group profitability."

Dr Taky added the planning function has become deeply ingrained in the National Bank of Kuwait's corporate culture, and promises to maintain the bank's position as one of the Arab world's most innovative, diversified, profitable and trusted financial institutions.

The NBK Library and Information Centre has emerged as one of the most sophisticated business reference centres in the Gulf. It comprises a team of information specialists drawing upon a collection of books, periodicals and reference volumes on issues related to banking and finance, banking automation and investment services.

The centre provides NBK managers and clients with up-to-date news and analyses of relevant financial developments throughout the world, and offers an in-house store of information which bank staff can draw upon to enhance their career develop-

Richard Stutely, chief econ-mist of Kuwait Burgan Bank said: "I tend to avoid the term research department, since that has academic overtones. Research for its own sake is fine in the right environment. But Burgan Bank is a commercial organisation, and we never lose sight of the fact that we have commercial objectives. So we prefer to use the term economics department. Of course, economics departments in financial institutions do not usually sell anything, so they cannot make a profit in their own right. Rather, their main job is to support the operations of the bank.

He added it is over simplistic to say, for example, that the duty of a joint-stock company is to make profits for its shareholders. Peromics Department contributes to the decision-making process by analysing the financial, social and political situation of the country.

Comprehensive

"In fact, Burgan Bank Economics has a fairly comprehensive international risk analysis system which attaches a grading to over 50 of the countries that we deal with and enables us to monitor constantly the status of our sovereign clients." he added.

sovereign clients," he added.

Stutely said: "We also track economic and political developments in the major economies so that we have a longer-term view about what might happen to exchange rates, interest rates and yields, and stock markets. In addition to these 'financial variables,' we are also most interested in what we call the 'real' economy. This is important for us because developments open opportunities for world trade, international business and so on.

As a Kuwaiti bank, we are obviously closely involved with the local economy and what might happen so that we can plan our business, and so that we can help clients to conduct their

"Let me give another example, working from the general to the particular. Our analysis might start with the world economy. From a study of international activity, we could forecast world oil demand for next year. We also know how much petroleum various producers might want to sell. From a relative analysis of oil demand, supply and price (since they are all inter-related) we could estimate how much oil Kuwait can sell, and at what price."

Demand

With a knowledge of Kuwaiti oil revenues, and other trends in government policy, "we can project government spending and aggregate demand in the Kuwaiti economy. This enables us to predict — for example — how many new cars might be sold in this country next year. Moreover, by analysing exchange rates and cost trends in different countries, we can even say how many American, Japanese and German autos might be sold."

He added: "We place stress on original thinking and precise analysis. Then we try to do away with technical language and jar-gon, and convey our thoughts as simply as possible. Our first help Burgan Bank identify and reach its corporate goals. Our subsidiary aim, no less important, is to promote understanding of the Kuwaiti economy. We hope to be able to publish some analysis in the near future which will add to this understanding, both at home and abroad. We hope that by doing this, we will contribute something, no matter how small, to the continuing prosperity of this excellent country."

Dr Abdul Wahab Al Ameen,

Dr Abdul Wahab Al Ameen, adviser and head, economics department of Kuwait Gulf Bank has said the basic objective of a commercial bank management is to maximise profits and minimise costs and in search for profit-maximisation, there are trade-offs between reduced risk and increased income. Decision making in commercial banks must be done quickly and decisively. The management cycle in every business consists of several steps or procedures such as planning, organising and controlling expected to accomplish a desirable end. Planning is the activity through which a business firm charts its future course of action

Competitive

He said planning is important because of the competitive environment within which banks operate and their desire to improve efficiently that will result in increased growth and increased return on equity. In the planning process, the first step is a recognition of the bank's resources, its assets, deposits, liquidity, and capital; its aceptance in the society; the expertise of its personnel and its dominance in the markatalloss.

ance in the marketplace.
The end result of planning is to develop a strategy for utilising the resources of a business within its projected environment so as to attain its overall objectives.

Process

A five-year strategy plan seems to be common, however planning is a continuous process. A strategy is a quantification of ideas. Strategies denote a programme of action and invoke the deployment of resources to attain certain objectives.

Establishing objectives is basic to the determination of the bank's policies and will affect the organisational structure of the bank as well as influence the type of personnel employed.

Banks operate in an economic environment, consequently an economic forecast for the next 3-5 years would certainly be helpful in adopting a plan.

Dr Ameen said the bank management must make many assumptions about the future, and project the organisation into that expected environment. It is at this point that the bank's economics department can play an important role in achieving the bank's targets. Assumptions must be made about many economic and financial factors that will impact the bank in the coming mouths.

The economics department should move quickly and efficiently to submit an executive briefing on the effect of a certain event or measure hoping it will be of use to the management. After evaluating the external forces, bank management turns to the internal qualities of the bank, which is the task of other depart-

The local markets research unit conducts studies on impact of monetary and fiscal policies on the Kuwaiti economy in general and the banking sector in particular.

The world market research unit conducts studies on specilised country report, FX and interest rates forecasts and world economic developments and forecasts.

US energy situation better, says Herrington

WASHINGTON, Feb 24, (Reuter): US energy supplies and prices are becoming more secure after years of instability, Energy Secretary James Herrington said today.

"The United States enjoys a much more secure energy environment than was the case years ago when first Opec and then the Iranian revolution convulsed world energy markets and exposed serious shortcomings in our nation's energy policies and practices," Herrington told a House of Representatives committee.

"Energy costs are lower and a measure of stability in energy markets has emerged. We are using energy from a greater variety of sources than ever before," he added.

But Herrington said US oil imports were increasing, including imports from the Gulf.

To increase energy security, the United States should begin exploration of the Arctic national wildlife refuge in Alaska and end price controls on natural gas, Herrington said.

S. Korea rapidly expanding trade with Soviet Union

TOKYO, Feb 24, (Reuter): With the help of Japanese companies, South Korea is rapidly expanding unofficial trade with the Soviet Union, despite official coolness between the two capitalist and communist nations, Japanese sources said today.

Japanese firms are playing a key role, providing front companies in the Philippines, Australia, and other countries to manage the trade, said a Japanese Soviet expert.

"Bilateral trade is expected to rise to $1.5 billion a year from 400 million to 500 million now after the Seoul Summer Olympics," said the professor from a Central Tokyo University, who declined to be named.

There was no confirmation of the report from Seoul. Officials confined themselves to saying: "We have some indirect trade exchanges with the Soviet Union but the volume is very small at present."

Ties

They said South Korea clearly wanted formal trade ties with Moscow, and hoped that this year's Seoul Olympics would help break down trade barriers. Repercussions because of Communist North Korea.

Seoul already has strong trade ties with China, which South Korean President Chun Doo Hwan said could lead to full diplomatic ties soon.

China and the Soviet Union are the main allies of Seoul's enemies in the Communist North. But the Soviets, unlike China, have officially been more distant from South Korea.

This month, Ludwig Chizhov, director of the Soviet Department of Pacific and Southeast Asian Affairs told reporters in Tokyo that Moscow did not intend to change its policy toward South Korea, despite its recent decision to participate in the Seoul Summer Olympics.

The South Standard Coynipies.

South Korea, which has given high priority to opening trade with Communist countries, agreed with Hungary last year to exchange resident trade missions.

One of the country's biggest car makers, Kia Motor, said on Tuesday it was negotiating with Hungary and China to set up joint-venture car plants there.

Many Japanese trading houses and oil companies, traditionally averse to taking risks, are having to cut staff after losing billions of dollars on speculative oil trading last year.

"Japanese companies lost their shirts last year," said one international oil trader today.

One oil analyst blamed US banks for encouraging oil companies to trade heavily in volatile oil futures, especially on the New York Mercantile Exchange (Nymex) where prospective buyers and sellers can hedge or speculate on the price of the commodity some time in the future.

Experience

The trouble was many Japanese traders guessed wrong and did not have the futures market experience to cut their losses. "It was a glorious con," the analyst said. beautifully conned by the investment banks who not only wrote and gave seminars on the subject, but participated themselves," he said

"They created a whole new activity for the oil industry," he said. "Some oil companies got excited, they thought it was a whole new world and stopped behaving like oil companies."

He said Japanese companies went into the futures market geared up by the feeling that the Organisation of Petroleum Exporting Countries (Opec) had the oil markets under control by mid-1987.

"The view was that oil prices would go racing up to $21 a barrel by the end of the year," he said.

US Central Bank gives itself high marks

WASHINGTON, Feb 24, (Reuter): The outlook for the US economy and inflation may be clouded but Federal Reserve Board chairman Alan Greenspan for one is clearly pleased with how his central bank is coping.

His first semi-annual report to Congress since he succeeded Paul Volcker last August held out the prospect of a sixth year of economic expansion millions of new jobs and a drop in the US trade deficit. At the same time, like any central banker, he called for vigilance against inflation.

Optimistic

The Fed is not known for smugness. But Greenspan's report came close to it in a passage discussing the efforts of the Federal Open Market Committee, the bank's policy-making panel, to maintain economic expansion while keeping inflation down and narrowing the huge US trade gap.

"For 1988, committee members generally were optimistic that policy would be geared to meeting these goals. Most members foresee continued economic growth ... with no significant pick-up in inflation," the report

Members of the House Banking Committee seemed quite happy with Greenspan's testimony and spared him a grilling. The financial markets reacted positively, too. "The dollar's up, bonds are up and stocks are steady — I don't see how they can be other than pleased," said Jim O'Neill of Marine Midland Bank in New York.

But Charles Taylor of Prudential-Bache Securities in Washington said recent market calm was deceptive.

World Business Summary

Ruder repeats call for market changes

NEW YORK, Feb 24, (AP): The head of the Securities and Exchange Commission today reiterated SEC proposals for preventing another stock market collapse and stressed his agency was working with futures market regulators rather than engaging in a power struggle. In a speech to an economic outlook conference of the Conference Board, SEC chairman David S Ruder also indicated his agency was examining ways of reducing volatility of stock prices and trading volume, which he attributed partly to the use of margin in the stock index futures markets.

Ruder repeated his agency's call to examine proposals for increasing coordination between the stock and futures markets and expanding the market's capacity to deal with unprecedented trading volumes. He also emphasised the SEC's "commitment to work closely with other regulators to formulate response to current market conditions." In testimony to the Senate Banking Committee earlier this mouth, Ruder had asked for broad new powers over stock-related futures trading, such as changing the level of credit allowed for purchases, early market closings and declaration of temporary trading halts. The proposal was resisted by Kalo Hineman, acting chairman of the Commodity Futures Trading Commission, in subsequent testimony.

Soviet ministries' staffs cut by half: economist

MOSCOW, Feb 24, (Reuter): A top Kremlin economic adviser says staff in Soviet government ministries have been cut by an average of 50 per cent as part of economic reforms, the weekly Moscow News said today. Even the State Planning Committee, Gosplan, has slashed its staff by 30 per cent, reformist economist Abel Aganbegyan was quoted as saying in an interview in the paper. He said nearly all administrative bodies in the Soviet Union had revamped their structures as part of the Kremlin campaign to cut back boreaucracy, which employs millions of people. "Of course this is a blow against boreaucracy, but how strong—time will tell," Aganbegyan said. A law requiring 60 per cent of the Soviet Union's enterprises to become self-financing this year has forced many organisations to reduce staff in order to survive. The authorities have made it clear that the state is not prepared to bale out insuccessful concerns. Aganbegyan said a special government commission on administration had been set up to correct "deviations from the law"—an indication that not everyone was cooperating voluntarily.

There have been many recent media reports of staff reductions in various sectors of the Soviet economy as part of Kremlin leader Mikhail Gorbachev's reforms. But Aganbegyan's statements were the most precise description to date of how the cuts had affected the government bureaucracy.

Soviet authorities have ordered job placement centres to be set up across the country to help people expected to be laid off.

The official policy is that no one should be unemployed as a result of the reforms, but authorities have made it clear that many people will have to find new jobs and may even have to move to different parts of the country.

Some officials have suggested that government bureaucrats could go to work in industry.

The Ukraine Communist Party namer Prayda Ukrainy said on

The Ukraine Communist Party paper Pravda Ukrainy said on February 7 that nearly 80,000 bureaucrats had lost their jobs in the republic and added that 1,500 industrial enterprises had been enlarged

That suggested that many unwanted administrators had been placed in factories.

US leads attack on cheap ICO coffee sales

LONDON, Feb 24, (Renter): The United States will express concern about reports of cut-price coffee sales on the world market when the International Coffee Organisation (ICO) board meet this week, US delegate Bruce McMullen said today. "This is a matter of concern, particularly if substantial differentials exist between member and non-member prices — we are suspicious," McMullen said.

The ICO is a trade body of coffee exporters and consuming nations. Its executive board is scheduled to meet in London on Thursday and Friday. ICO rules state that prices should be the same for exports to markets in both member and non-member countries, and that offenders may be penalised by a cut in their allocated export quotas. Dealers say coffee for export to countries that are not ICO members is currently available at prices 25 per cent below those for export to ICO members.

Leading producer delegates attending routine committee meetings ahead of the board session said the United States seemed concerned about large discounts offered by exporting members Mexico, Guatemala and Indonesia. "Producers will expect the US to provide hard evidence of discounted sales," they said. McMullen said the United States was leading the way in combatting cheap sales, but added that its concern was shared by other.

Board chairman Bruno Caron of France said he expected a debate on discount sales and any infringement of ICO price rules would be dealt with in time by a special committee.

London cocoa prices dip

LONDON, Feb 24, (Reuter): Cocoa prices dipped to a five-year low this morning but rallied slightly by midday, inching back over a psychologically-important market level of £1,000 a tonne. It was the first time that the price had fallen into triple figures since December 9 and today's early decline took cocoa for March delivery down to £996 a tonne — its lowest since early 1983 and almost £20 down on Tuesday's close. Traders said the market had been dominated recently by sellers, but had rallied after some players who had been caught short with contracts to fill entered the market as buyers.

Traders said market sentiment generally was being dampened

Prioris said market sentiment generally was being dampened by speculation that a cocoa producer-proposed scheme to hold 120,000 tonnes of the commodity back from the market was unlikely to be accepted at a meeting of the International Cocoa Organisation Council next week. This opinion followed what traders described as an unsuccessful buffer stock buying operation this week. Cocoa futures prices have declined by around £150 a tonne since the latest round of buffer stock purchasing began on January 19 for 75,000 tonnes. Despite a total 250,000 tonnes being taken from the market for the ICCO buffer stock, including 100,000 from the previous pact and 75,000 bought last year, the world cocoa balance is expected to be in heavy over-supply in 1987-88, traders said.

US lends Argentina $500m

WASHINGTON, Feb 24, (AP): The United States announced yesterday that it was supplying $500 million in short-term financing to Argentina while the South American country worked out arrangements for a longer term loan with the International Monetary Fund. The treasury department made the announcement of the loan, which would be the second such borrowing Argentina has done in the past five months. In November, Argentina received another $500 million bridge loan from the United States and 14 other countries which it paid back in January after it received further money from the IMF. In a statement announcing the new loan, the Treasury Department said, "the willingness of the United States to provide this financing indicates our support for Argentina's economic programme to achieve sustainable growth and a viable balance of payments

The Statement said that the United States "commends Argentina's efforts to implement stabilisation and reform policies with the support of the international financial community."

London Gold

LONDON, FEB 24 - GOLD BULLION SETTLED DOWN TO TRADE IN A FAIRLY TIGHT RANGE DURING LATE AFTERNOON BUSINESS AFTER EARLIER FALLING SHARPLY TO ITS LOWEST LEVEL SINCE APRIL 1987. DEALERS SAID SHORT-COVERING BY PROFESSIONALS HELPED THE HETAL BOUNCE OFF ITS LOW OF 431.50/432.50 DLRS AN QUNCE. GOLD ENDED THE DAY AT 435.20/435.70, LITTLE CHANGED FROM ITS AFTERNOON FIX OF 435.75 BUT SHARPLY BELOW TUESDAY'S CLOSE OF 442.25/442.75. SELLING BY PRODUCERS AND PROFESSIONALS CONTRIBUTED TO THE INITIAL DECLINE, WITH STOPS TRIGGERED BY THE FALL THROUGH SUPPORT AT 440 AND 435 DLRS.

London Money Market

ZURICH PS

KUWAITI dinar deposit rates eased yesterday after a KD200 million Central Bank treasury bill issue was heavily oversubs-

MERCK I

The bank said bids totalling KD385 million were received for the three-month bills, allotted at an average of 5.018 per cent.

Dealers said banks whose requests had not been fully met were left with surplus funds, which boosted liquidity. The Central Bank continued to offer five per cent for three-month funds but the amount of business was small, they said.

Overnight, which dealt at six per cent on Tuesday, slipped to two per cent while tomorrownext was quoted wide at three, one per cent and spot-next was bid at four per cent from seven per cent highs on Tuesday.

The fixed periods were quoted 5-1/4, five per cent for the one to three-month maturities and 5-1/ 2, five per cent for the six to 12month.

Interest

Moderate bidding interest focused on the one-month, which dealt at between 4-3/4 and 5-1/4 per cent from a five to 5-3/4 per cent range on Tuesday. The Central Bank dinar exchange rate was a touch softer at 0.27594/604 to the dollar from Tuesday's second fix of 0.27588/ 98. Commercial banks quoted spot rates of around 0.27604/09. Meanwhile, Saudi riyal interbank deposits eased today at the short end of the market in response to softer dollar interest rates and receding tension over a forthcoming Saudi government bond issue. Dealers said rates for deposits of up to three months declined in moderate trade, with an influx of fresh funds from the Saudi Arabian Monetary Agency on Tuesday exerting additional downward pressure in an already saturated market.

Funds

During the past few days traders have been willing to lend funds in reversal of a trend seen during the past two weeks, when rates rose sharply.

Earlier, traders were reluctant to take out new positions amid uncertainty over the timing, amount and terms of the bond issue. Rumours about the programme, expected in March, are still circulating, but traders no longer fear a big liquidity squeeze.

One-month funds declined 1/8 point to 6-11/16, 1/2 per cent while three-months eased to seven, 6-3/4 per cent from 7-1/8. seven. Six-months and one-year were steady at 7-3/16, 1/8 percent and 7-7/16, 5/16 respectively.

Nigeria launches agricultural policy

LAGOS, Feb 24, (Opecna): The Nigerian President, General Ibrahim Babangida, has attributed the failure of past agricultural policies in the country to misconceptions of the role of government in agricultural development and frequent changes in policy directions.

Launching the country's agricultural policy here at the weekend, Babangida said that poor implementation of such policies as well as deficient institutional arrangements were also responsible for the failure of past policies

The president said in addition to the various measures enunciated in the 1988 budget to revamp agriculture, the government decided to formulate a policy that would offer solutions to the country's agricultural problems.

Policy

Noting that the new policy was prepared after comprehensive consultations with key decisionmakers in various sectors of the economy, Babangida appealed to the private sector to cooperate with the government to ensure the success of the measures.

He regretted that the contribution of agriculture to the country's gross domestic product had dwindled from 61 percent in 1964 to 18 per cent in 1980.

In an address, the Minister of Agriculture, Water Resources and Rural Development Maj. Gen. Gado Nasko, said that the objective of the policy was to stop the haphazard and incoherent fashion which had characterised Nigeria's past agricultural policies."

Strategies

He disclosed that the policy was the first stage in an effort to evolve an integrated blueprint or strategies and programmes for the country's agricultural development, adding that a second policy implementation document would also be drawn

According to the minister, the 13 key issues raised in the document, which is in three parts, include the pegging of the size of the land which an individual or organisation could hold at a maximum of 2.000 hectares and the introduction of a new agricultural insurance policy.

Al Saquer tells Cairo to boost exports to Gulf

THE chairman of the Kuwait Chamber of Commerce and Industry Abdul Aziz Al Saquer yesterday said that the Egyptian government would solve old problems of Kuwait real estate owners in

He aftirmed that the Kuwaiti market is open for Egyptian commodities and urged Cairo to increase its exports to the Arab Gulf markets.

Al Saquer told Kuna after meeting the deputy chairman of the Egyptian General Investment Authority and free zones Dr Mohiuddin Algharib at the chamber's headquarters, that routine works had delayed registering real estate in Egypt in the name of its Kuwaiti owners and called on Cairo to settle the problem once and for all, noting that some are still pending in courts.

We would wish the problems be solved in any way whether by issuing a special law or upon orders of Egyptian President Hosni Mubarak," the chair-

He explained that "we do not want to overrule the Egyptian laws but need an end to the problem" and noted that a draft law now is tabled in the Egyptian parliament which allowed the concerned ministers to settle such issues.

Al Saquer had visited Egypt last January at the head of a high level chamber delegation, during which he conferred with several economy officials for talks on ways of settling obstacles facing the real estate problems. Asked about what Egypt achieved in developing investment works there particularly in facilitating Araband Kuwaiti investments, Al Squer said that most of the chamber's requests such as unifying the dollar's exchange rate against the Egyptian pound and allowing free pric-ing of goods and services of investment projects have been met by Cairo.

Kuwaiti investments in Egypt including exports to the Arab Gulf markets

Exports

He added that Eyptian investment officials are seriously endeavouring to promote that sector in the country.

He advocated expanding the volume of Egyptian industrial and agricultural Asked about his meeting with Algharib, he said the Egyptian official invited him to attend the Arab investment sympositim in Egypt scheduled to open there on March 13 to discuss a number of investment projects.

Algharib arrived here yesterday at the end of a Gulf tour during which he visited the UAE and Qatar. Al Saquer noted that the symposium, to be opened by President Mubarak, will allow opportunity to explore investment atmosphere and opportunities in Egypt.

Cairo, is scheduled to table 80 investment ventures before the Arab investors in the gathering that will be attended by chairman of all Arab chambers.

Bahrain stock exchange expected to open within six months

BAHRAIN, Feb 24, (Reuter): Bahrain is pressing ahead with plans to set up its first stock exchange and hopes to open a trading floor within about six months, the project's adviser said today. Fawzi Behzad said conversion of an office block in central Manama should be completed within a month and the exchange would be opened between June and September.

"Our plan is to open in summer, but no date has been decided on yet," he told Reuters. The exchange, replacing a telephone and telex market, was first proposed in August 1986 as part of a package of government measures to stimulate Bahrain's economy Initially 21 Bahraini-owned companies will be listed plus nine joint venutres between Bahrainis and nationals of other Gulf, Cooperation Council countries - Kuwait, Oman, Qatar, Saudi Arabia and the UAE.

Markets Gulf states have been trying to expand their financial markets, placing particular emphasis in recent months on issuing government bonds or treasury bills to bridge budget deficits.

Stock exchanges have developed more slowly. In Saudi Arabia, a trading floor was opened for just three weeks last year and then closed because, bankers said, of objections from the kingdom's conservative religious community.

Oman plans to open an exchange later this year. The only trading floor now operating in the Gulf is in Kuwait where bankers say weak earnings, competigovernment debt om ings and October's worldwide slide in stocks have depressed prices.

Some Gulf-based bankers had hoped the "Black Monday" crash would boost Gulf stock markets by encouraging local investors to repatriate funds from major Western exchanges. But share indices have painted a different picture. The index for Kuwaiti companies has slipped 9.2 per cent since early October. The index for the Saudi market, now back on a telephone and telex basis with no sign of an early revival of the trading floor. is virtually unchanged from precrash levels, while Bahrain's share index has retreated by 6.6

January, not to mention February, are available yet."
It added that Klynveld Kraayenhof, the independent Dutch firm of auditors engaged to monitor Opec production and supply levels, began work simultaneously in the 12 signatory countries on Monday, to audit the January figures.

"All member countries (who are) signatories to the December agreement have assured KKC officials of their full cooperation and access to facilities.

Caution slows worldwide rebound in share prices

LONDON, Feb 24, (Reuter): Tokyo's stock market edged up today for the 10th straight session but a worldwide advance in share prices showed signs of faltering.

JUNIOR TIMES

Dear Junior Readers,

Kuwait's National Day is a special time for both Kuwaitis and those of us who call Kuwait our home. It is tun to see the country celebrate its 27th anniversary and to participate in this festive occasion.

There are many events planned in Kuwait for today and the coming week in honour of National Day. Try to attend some of these festivities and learn more about your host country. It would also be worthwhile to take a drive through the city in the evening and enjoy the colourful lights, which adorn many buildings and homes.

Although most of us are not citizens of Kuwait, we can, nonetheless, enjoy celebrating with our Kuwaiti friends the 27th National Day of

KES celebrates Kuwait's 27th National Day

KUWAIT English School students from Kindergar-ten to High School all joined in to celebrate Kuwait's National Day with a number of activities. culminating in a flag-raising ceremony yesterday, followed by a brief talk by the school chairman Mr Mohammed Jassim Al

Kindergarten children made displays and Kuwaiti flags, the Infant Department had a special assembly followed by a party with traditional-Kuwaiti dances, songs and Arabic food and the Juniors depicted various aspects of life in Kuwait with displays lining the school's corridors.

The Social Studies classes focussed on Kuwait's impressive growth and modernisation from 1961 to the present and joined the Arabic Department in developing a three-dimen-sional display showing various facets of Kuwaiti life; homes, dress, customs and industry.

A special National Day concert was presented with Arab and non-Arab students participating in paying their respects to Kuwait and its rulers.

IF you and your mother or father would like to try your hand at Kuwaiti cooking, follow these three typical Kuwaiti recipes.

Machbons Labem — Lamb 'machbous' with rice Ingredients

Leg or shoulder of lamb or lamb pieces

Whole and ground car-

whole and ground cinnamon whole cloves

oil (optional) Basmati rice

Jarte

Wash the thoroughly and put in a large pot. Fill the pot with water until the meat is well covered. Add three to four cardamom pods, four sticks of cinnamon, four whole cloves and peeled onion cut in half. The spices and onion give a nice flavour to the meat.

Heat the water until it boils, then let it continue to boil on medium heat until the meat is tender, about 40 minutes to an hour depending on how large your piece of meat is. Add salt, according to taste, when the meat is about half done.

When the meat is cooked take it out of the water, but do not throw out the water as you will be using it to cook the rice. Strain the water into another container, discard the onion and spices, and set it aside. Sprinkle the cooked meat with a teaspoon of ground cardamom and a teaspoon of ground cinnamon and brown it in the pot in a little oil. If you like your food less oily you can brown it under the grill in your oven. If you've browned it in the pot, leave the oil in strained water. This will give the rice more flavour. I usually measure three coffee mugs full of rice for four people. (You can warm up leftover rice the next day in a baking pan in the oven).

Add just enough of the strained water to cover the rice one centimetre. If the water you were left with is not enough you can add some water to make up the measure. The Basmati rice cooks quickly and the grains of rice swell till they are light and fluffy. Bring the water to boiling, then let it boil on medium heat.

While the rice is cooking there are two things you should do. First, take a Kuwaiti teacup or any very small glass and fill it with hot water, a generous pinch of saffron and half a teaspoon of ground car-damom and leave it for later. Second, make the heshew, a mixture of onion, pine nuts and sultanas which you sprinkle on top of the cooked rice. (see recipe below)

When your rice has expanded, is fluffy, and no longer hard, turn the heat on low and let it simmer for five or ten minutes, until the excess moisture has steamed away. At this time you should pour the saffron mixture on top of the rice in a circular pattern so that you will end up with nice streaks of yellow mixed with the white rice.

Heshew Ingredients

3 medium onions Ground dried black limes Pine nuts

Ground cumin Black pepper

First, wash a handful of sultanas and leave them to soak in warm water for ten to fifteen minutes, until they are soft. Chop the onions in a frying pan (a Teflon one is best) and fry them over medium heat without any oil, stirring them continuously as they brown adding spoonfuls of water now and then when they begin to stick to the pan

"Stir in a handful of pine nuts, letting them brown as the onions continue to get darker. Add a teaspoon each of black lime powder, ground cardamom and ground cumin and do not stop stirring. Now drain and add the sultanas and continue stirring until the onion has turned dark brown, Set aside.

When everything is ready, dish the rice out onto a large platter, sprin-kle the heshew on top and put the meat on top of the rice. Serve with a tomato sauce called dakkous (see recipe below).

Dakkous — Tomato Sance

Dakkous is quick and simple to make. Use four medium fresh chopped tomatoes or peeled tinned tomatoes which you have mashed with a fork. Chop up parsley, celery leaves, or any greens you have available. Add to the tomatoes and heat in a saucepan along with a clove of finely chopped garlic, a few spoons of tomato paste, add salt and

FAIRFAX, Va., Feb 24, (AP): Martina Navratilova and Pam Shriver posted convincing victories over unseeded foes yesterday to advance to the second round of the $300,000 Virginia Slims of Washington tennis tour-

LONDON, Feb 24, (AP): Wat-ford, outplayed for long periods of the match, scored the goals that mattered and beat Third Division Port Vale 2-0 in an English FA Cup fifth round replay last night.

Port Vale, which eliminated Tottenham Hotspur in the previous round and had the better of last Saturday's 0-0 draw against Watford, was punished in the replay for poor finishing as the first division hosts booked their place in the quarterfinals.

After a bright start by Vale, Watford took the lead after six minutes with a goal by Trevor Senior. But the visitors kept attacking and Tony Coton in the Watford goal had to make a number of smart saves.

Early in the second half, Coton was beaten but the ball crashed against the Watford crossbar and rebounded into play. The First Division side wrapped up victory in the 58th minute with a Gary Porter volley to set up a quarterfinal tie at Wimbledon. In an English First Division game, Tottenham Hotspur and

SOVIETS WIN ICE DANCING CROWN

Nykanen makes Olympic history by winning third gold

CALGARY, Canada, Feb 24, (UPI): Matti Nykanen made Olympic history yesterday by winning the third Olympic gold medal of his career, only to be outclassed as crowd favourite by the man who finished dead last. The 24-year-old "Flying Finn" won the 90-metre ski jump event by an overwhelming margin to take his second gold medal of these Games and become the most successful ski jumper in the 64 years since the Winter Olympics began.

Performance

His performance came on a day when crisp, calm weather helped relieve a chaotic backlog of events. For the first time since the opening ceremonies, organisers could brag that every competition scheduled during the day came off as planned.

Nykanen claimed a gold and silver medal four years ago in Sarajevo and won a gold last week in the 70-metres ski jump event. He has a chance for another medal later this week in the team jumping competition.

The 80,000 people who jam-med into the ski jumping site, however, saved their biggest cheer for Michael "Eddie" Edwards, who during his stay in Calgary has provided Olympic comic relief and become one of the Game's most publicised competitors because he is so bad.

"That's fine," Nykanen said. "We need some clows in this business.

Edwards finished last expected - in a 55-man field. His best jump was 47 metres shorter than that of Nykanen. Despite that, the crowd chan-ted, "Ed-Dy, Ed-Dy," before he jumped and gave him a huge roar of approval when he landed both of his jumps safely. Nykanen was joined as a gold-medalist yesterday by East German Frnak-Peter Roetsch, who won the 10-kilometre speedskating event and the Soviet ice dancing pair of Natalia Besternianova

Another Soviet pair, threetime world silver medalists Marina Klimova and Sergei Ponomarenko, finished second and Canadians Tracy Wilson and Robert McCall were third.

Roetsch and Nykanen joined Swedish distance speedskater Tomas Gustafson as doublegold champions of these Olympics. Roetsch won the 20kilometre biathlon event on Saturday. The Swiss women Alpine skiers will be hoping to salvage their reputation in the giantslalom at Mount Allan.

New Zealand's hopes get double blow

AUCKLAND, New Zealand, Feb 24, (Reuter): New Zealand's hopes of winning the second Test against England received a double blow when all-rounder Richard Hadlee and in-form batsman Andrew Jones withdrew from the side today.

Hadlee has not recovered from a calf muscle injury suffered on the opening day of the drawn first Test in Christchurch and Jones, who sustained a hair-line fracture of the wrist from a ball from Graham Dilley, also failed a fitness test. Frustrating

It will be the first time for more than a decade that New Zealand have gone into a home Test with-out Hadlee, again frustrating his hopes of taking his 374th Test wicket to improve on the world record he currently shares with lan Botham.

Hadlee had undergone ultrasound treatment, acupuncture and physiotheraphy in a desperate attempt to get fit for the Test which begins tomorrow.

New Zealand have brought medium pacer Willie Watson onto their 12 and he, or Ken Rutherford, is likely to be named

12th man. The one piece of good news from the home side was the aunouncement that medium pace bowler Ewen Chatfield has recovered from a hamstring

England made two changes to the 12 named for the first Test, batsman Bill Athey and fast bowler Phillip Defreitas losing their places to Neil Fairbrother and Neal Radford. Spilled

Seve Ballesteros, a world citizen of golf, will make the second of only eight appearances in the United States this year when he plays in tomorrow's Los Angeles

As a non-member of the PGA Tour, the Spaniard is only allowed to play in eight American tournaments. That's a rule he doesn't like.

Foreign players must par-ticipate in 15 PGA tour events to keep their tour membership. Players who do not meet that requirement are limited to playing in the three major champion-ships — Masters, US Open and PGA — and five other tournaments of the sponsors' choice. Suspended Ballesteros met requirement once, in 1984. But he played in only nine tournaments the next year and was suspended from the Tour for

"I tried it one year and that is why I know I cannot take it," Ballesteros said. "It is too many tournaments." He says he would prefer to play

Ballesteors' problem is due more to the global nature of golf. He finds himself with both a financial and personal interest in playing around the world. That means about 14 tournaments a year in Europe, two or more in Japan, a couple more in some other places plus his US events. Ballesteros said playing in 15 US tournaments would require 18 weeks a year in this country.

"I would be playing golf the whole year, and that's why it's impossible," he said. "The superstar players cannot play too much because they have a lot of pressure. They have other com-mitments. We understand that. But we have to be productive of our time, otherwise we get bur-
